The UK Neuromorphic Computing Roadmap: 2050 Vision was produced by NeuroWare Innovation & Knowledge Centre which is supported by the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council under grant UKRI2784. This roadmap was researched and written by Dr Aysha Riaz (Research Fellow at NeuroWare) under the guidance of Tony Kenyon (Director of NeuroWare) with support from the NeuroWare and UCL Policy Impact Unit teams.

It has been developed and co-designed at every stage through a collaborative, community-led process involving contributions from across the UK and international neuromorphic computing ecosystem. Its development was informed by a vision workshop, five thematic roundtables, 20 one-to-one stakeholder interviews, and an extensive review process. In total, more than 100 individuals from academia, industry, government, and the wider innovation community were engaged in shaping this roadmap.

The authors are grateful to everyone who contributed their time, expertise, and feedback throughout the development of the roadmap. Thank you to the NeuroWare team, NeuroWare's partner organisations, and special thanks to the UCL Policy Impact Unit.

The individuals listed below represent many of those who contributed to this work. Their participation does not imply endorsement of the roadmap's findings or recommendations. This list is not exhaustive.
